Through this time I found an amazing community online that shared my interests and understood me. But I lost connections with true friends too...

Ode to my tiny space heater

Sometimes when I am stressed or sad, I just want to be warm. Bring the warm in any package you can find, my body says. So when I am checking ^{in on} the protest against racial injustice or looking at the COVID-19 maps of the states that make up my country and the counties that make up my state, sometimes I blast the heater, letting that heat magic rain down on my arm, my shoulders, my face. The front of me. The back of me. The invisible places that the traumas of this world have crawled into and roosted a bit to get out of the storm. You are a tiny bit of a hot miracle to me, better right now than blueberry pie.

ENJOY THE
TIME YOU HAVE

It's Friday April 10th today. It's a beautiful sunny day. A few days ago, I was informed that there won't be school for the rest of the year, because of the coronavirus. I'm surprised to say that I miss school. It would be different if we could still see our friends and stand closer than 20 feet to someone. But we can't. It's funny how everyone said 2020 would be the year. I don't think they were talking about the year of death, which 2020 has turned into. I've still been texting and calling my friends, but I would've hugged them a little tighter if I knew I wouldn't see them again for 6 months or more. We have online school now. It's fine, I guess, but not everyone has access to a computer, so some people might just not do it. I feel bad for all the only children. I've had a pretty fun time with my family so far. I went on the garage roof with Sean, and that was quite fun. He's building a platform to go on the roof. Or maybe a boat. It's fun that we have hobbies, because the pandemic is really taking a toll on our mental health, so it's good to be distracted from it.

Oh Covid-19
What you have Done to
Humans beings

You have killed
Thousands of people
Locked down
Every city and Town all over
The globe
Most of all
Locked up
The place of Worship
In history

Covid-19
What is your Purpose
You make cities
Look like
Ghost reality
Within that
Humans sweep
Toilet paper
Off the shelves and
Hand sanitizer
In every store

Covid-19
Humans wonder
Is toilet paper
Your weapon

Covid-19
You are really
Something else
Even worse than Influenza

Are you here
In this world
To divide
Humans from
Their love ones
From their community
That they never Experienced

Oh yeah
What humans called
Self-quarantine
Within that
Humans ask
For how long
Staying home
Is this Going
To be last
Even Though
Covid-19
You don't really
Care about that

Covid-19
Humans are curious
Why are you here
In this world
In the first place

Are you trying to Show humans
You are
Above the law
Although
Humans believed
No one is above
The law

Show humans
Your reality is real

No matter what
Humans believe

Oh yeah covid-19
It doesn't mean
You locked up
Every activity
In cities
That humans
Interact with Either
Good or bad
Humans can be Creative
To cope with your mass reality

They work hard
In many ways
Around the clock
To beat your
Evil systems

Covid-19
You have three
Worst case scenarios
But humans created
Twice as much
strategies
Than yours
In order to protect Themselves
As well as
Their nation
Together

You see Covid-19
Humans are
Sick and tired of
Your symptoms

Now
Why don't you
Go back to
Your secret
Hole and
Self-quarantine
Yourself
Because
You do not Belong
In human life
Yourself
